

Political Package:

The Nation Digital Archive

Established July 6, 1865, The Nation offers a 135-year archive of reporting opinion and criticism. It is an immensely important clearinghouse of primary source material covering the history of politics, culture, books and the arts - in America and around the world. The Nation Digital Archive is a fully searchable electronic version of the magazine's complete backfile.

The National Review Archive

The National Review Archive has been a leading journal of opinion since its inception in 1955 by William F. Buckley Jr. The publication consistently provides insightful and unique coverage of political, economic, social, and cultural issues and trends, and remains one of the leading sources in this regard. The secret to The National Review's success is that it digs deeper than the networks, major newspapers, and national newsweeklies in its quest to provide an editorial product of unparalleled excellence. With its hallmarks of style, wit, and intelligence, The National Review does much more than merely render facts and commentary: The National Review clarifies the real causes, principles, and philosophies underlying today's and tomorrow's most important issues. This database offers complete indexing & abstracting and full text coverage for all issues of the journal back to the first issue in 1955 through to the present.

The New Republic Archive™

The New Republic™, founded in 1914, is the country's leading journal of opinion on politics and the arts. Current and past issues of the journal are now available together in a single, stand-alone online database. The New Republic Archive presents insights from a variety of viewpoints on topics such as politics, foreign policy, culture, current events, the arts, and much more. The database features award-winning writers and critics from many fields and from most political viewpoints. The New Republic Archive contains more than 4,550 issues, with coverage dating back to 1914. In addition, this database currently contains more than 82,000 PDF files with current issues continually added.